Q…How do I address the court to stay out of contract and to change from criminal to civil proceedings

A…“I am attending by SPECIAL APPEARANCE in propria persona, reserving all rights”. “I do not consent to the contract, and I waive the benefits thereof. I am here to pay any verified claims” I answer to that name out of necessity and I reserve my rights.

Q…What is the simplest method for self presentation in court?

A…I’m here under duress (But have evidence of this) I’m here to present myself, I don’t consent to the jurisdiction of this court and I don’t consent to doing business with that party. I’m only here under duress and threat of menace and under protest. “Are you threatened?” “Well I’m sure if I don’t attend I’m sure the boys in blue are going to be coming round to detain me mistakenly for some legal entity fiction name, that I am not and they may break my bones to get me to court and that would be a trespass of my peace, my body and my time and I would have to sue a number of parties including maybe the source of the warrant, because the court has already acknowledged that I am not the defendant or the defender and therefore the police should leave me alone. Bit if they come to get me there is going to be a lot of parties that are going to be sued and I hope they’ve got good indemnity insurance because if they don’t I’ll be taking their assets off them, so are we done today?

Q...If you are in a magistrate’s court and the judge says they will plead for you what do you say?

A... What you can say is “Your Honour I’m not in charge of this courtroom you are aren’t you so I guess if you want to make the decision I guess you have to wear the liability for it?” And see where that goes. Don’t mention the word Trustee, technically that’s what he is but don’t you say it just say “I guess you’ll be taking over the liability for it then wouldn’t you?” And see where that goes.

Q……Is it ok to accuse an organisation in court of being fraudulent in regards to a fine.

A... It’s better to ask “Are you claiming to be a court?” “What to you mean?” “No no it’s a yes or no question, are you claiming to be a court?

You've issued this infringement, it's my understanding only a court can issue an infringement notice, are you a court? Yes or no, or are you attempting to commit a fraud?" And then see where it goes, they might back off then.

Q.....If the judge calls your name

A... Say "I only answer to that name out of necessity" Don't say under duress unless you have evidence with your affidavit, or they will threaten to put a warrant out for your arrest. Same with saying I am the administrator of that estate etc, they'll try to force you to admit to it by threatening you. So don't play the game and say "I only answer to that name out of necessity and I reserve all my rights liberties and freedoms and I waive all benefits and privileges and I'm only here under duress and protest and threats of menace are we done today?" If they still say "we're going to send a warrant out' then say "Sir with respect what are you threatening me for now, what is the purpose of your threats, because that's already at least half a dozen offences. If I put a complaint in you could be in serious trouble, I'd rather you weren't, so why are you threatening me tell me what I did wrong or why are you threatening me tell me what I did wrong or why are you threatening?"

Q...If I answer to my straw man name have I slipped up?

A... Answering to a name is not being a name "I answer to that name and BTW blah blah blah"

Q…What does appearance in court mean?

A…Only ghosts appear, I don't appear I attend court.

Q..How can they make us appear when they don't have jurisdiction in the Courts over living men and women.

A…They don't have jurisdiction but they claim jurisdiction when you enter the court room and justifiably because they will say "You consented to be here and therefore you give us jurisdiction" However if the first words out of your mouth are "Sir I'm here reserving my rights, waiving all benefits and privileges and I'm here answering to that name and I'm only here under duress and fear of menace because I don't consent to doing business with that party, that party that party" and point your fingers at all of the ones dragging you in and you watch them all duck behind their desks, it's amazing, you have tremendous power. Since you don't consent they have now lost jurisdiction. As soon as you have finished saying it then say ‘Are we done today?” Sometimes they’ll just say “Well you can go” other times they will test you and they have the right to test you because in the Bible people are tested three times. “Does anyone here claim that I am NOT a wo/man?” And ask three times.

Q…In court aren’t you appearing as the name?

A..Are you? You may well be if you don’t break the presumption. How do you break the presumption? “I answer to that name” (that means ‘I am not that name I just answer to that name’)

Q... Can you introduce yourself as the administrator of a legal person?

A...I think a better term is general executor, because that is a party that is in trust where you are the beneficiary to that trust/legal name. You’re presumed the trustee but you are not, it is the Govt that is the trustee or the parties that are in the public.

Q. What if they won’t let you into court unless you scan the QR code?

A... Ask for a security guard and say look you better go and get a registrar because I’m not going to sign anything or scan anything but I’m prepared to come into court, I’m not going to come into court if I have to scan that thing. They’ll probably let you through quietly without you scanning it. Or take a phone that can’t scan or leave your phone behind. Just deal with it quietly. No one can force you to do anything.

Q..... What paperwork do you need to get an adjournment?

A.....AdjournmentsYou just orally apply when you get to court eg“My mother just died and I’m not fit to see.If he puts pressure on you just say “Sorry your honour I don’t consent to these proceedings. I’m just not in a position to cope with this. I do need it adjourned. I’m just not prepared, I need some time out because of these circumstances. Also you need to have proof if you are making an assertion. eg medical certificate saying how you’ve been affected by the event and the death certificate. Whatever evidence you have.You can also claim hardship or whatever is making it difficult for you.

Q…Is covid-19 related infringement and subsequent summons classified as civil or criminal?

A..I think they are classified as criminal.

Q…What position does being a debtor put us into?

A…It’s a dishonourable position to be in, if you owe a debt to become honourable again you either offer to pay or offer to conditionally pay. That’s ethical, moral and honourable.

Q…In a court are you the beneficiary

A…Because all courts are legal fiction and the estate (John Henry Doe) you can only be the beneficiary and the grantor, the one who gave energy to the estate but because the court presumes you are the trustee and they want you to be the trustee, because who has all the obligations and liabilities of the estate. But you’re not the trustee, the govt and all the public entities are the trustee so say “look I’m here as beneficiary and grantor today” Get in before they do “and I guess somebody else is the trustees. I’m done, anything else today? The trustee can take care of the account today, thank you I’m gone, bye”

Q…Is it true that every time we answer a question or make a claim we assume the role of the debtor?

A..Yes it is. Look at how the Queen communicates with people, she asks questions, she doesn’t answer questions unless they are questions she can validate. He who asks the right questions controls the conversation. You’ve lost control when you answer questions and they then become the authority.

Q…What is the difference between civil and criminal?

A…Civil is usually when there is a breach of an agreement and criminal is when it’s a breach of an agreement but is in the form of an offence against some form of legislation, whether it is a criminal code or Act, because for example if you are speeding you signed an agreement saying you wouldn’t and you would comply with all of the road rules and because you didn’t that is a breach of contract which comes out as a statutory penalty. A criminal offence can be a gaolable offence but if you offer to pay conditionally, which is honourable, that turns criminal into civil, because it is then all about commerce. But it keeps it in the criminal arena by saying “I’m not guilty” or “I refuse to pay” This shows belligerence, because the word guilty in Dutch means to pay. Not guilty means I’m not paying and that becomes evidence of a belligerent debtor. It’s much better to say “Look I’m prepared to pay when I see evidence of blah blah blah” and if they can’t provide the evidence then you don’t pay. That’s the honourable way to do it.

Q…How do you answer the question “where do you live?” in court?

A..Well personally I live in my body but if lawyers or judges acting for other sides ask me I just say “Well do I not live in my body?” And they just say “Where does the body live” and I say “Well does it not live on the earth?” And they say “Well what part of the earth?” And it just goes on for hours, it doesn’t go anywhere and the judges usually laugh because lawyers have such incompetent questions because they are very incompetent people. If it gets too tedious you just say “Your Honour with respect where is this leading to and how is this relevant, where do you sleep, where does your head rest, well doesn’t it rest on my pillow?” When they try and get information, they don’t get much information from me.

Q At the first directions hearing, how would you answer when the clerk calls you?

A You can address me by the name blah blah blah and this makes them happy enough. Just go quickly on and don’t stop because if you stop it gives them time to catch their breath and maybe question you on it. I answer to the name blah blah and by the way they’ve done blah blah then you can totally distract them. That’s what they do to you so do it to them, that way you’ll never ever have an issue.

Q I went to court and it didn’t go to plan

A It doesn’t always go to plan the first time but you made the effort and usually the second time around you’ll get it. Half the time it goes to a second one and there’s where you get your remedy. They really like to test you, just expect it. You can say “Your honour I object where is your authority and jurisdiction to proceed when you don’t have in personam jurisdiction and therefore you don’t have in rem jurisdiction, with respect”

Q what happens if the judge threatens to go to trial

A It cannot go to trial if no plea has been entered. They will still try to get you to plea. If they say “It’s going to trial” It’s a bluff to see how much you know about the process and trying to intimidate you. Just keep repeating what you did to stay out of admitting a plea. Take witnesses and a camera.

Q...If you are in a magistrate's court and the judge says they will plead for you what do you say?

A... What you can say is "Your Honour I'm not in charge of this courtroom you are aren't you so I guess if you want to make the decision I guess you have to wear the liability for it?" And see where that goes. Don't mention the word Trustee, technically that's what he is but don't you say it just say "I guess you'll be taking over the liability for it then wouldn't you?" And see where that goes.

Q.. How can you ask a magistrate to prove their jurisdiction without putting them offside?

A..... Just say sir with respect objection where is the in personam jurisdiction to proceed and consequently where is the in rem jurisdiction. If anyone is claiming jurisdiction now please provide the evidence" There is none.

Q... If the magistrate asks you questions

A... If it is side tracking say "Sir with respect, what relevance does that have to do with the point we are discussing or the matter at hand? The other side has already agreed by default that they have no cause of action so are we done?" Answer a question with a question. You can even say "Sir with humblest respect I'm sorry I don't answer questions, do I need to because the other side has already agreed they've got no jurisdiction " Just deflect it. It takes practise guys. Don't expect to be an expert straight away. It takes 50 before you start to get competent, unless of course you watch and study on court modules and webinars and then rehearse and rehearse. You can save 200 or 300 appearances by learning the right way of doing something before you do it.

Q The magistrate keeps cutting me off.

A... Just wait until he has finished, take a deep breath and have another go. Don't interrupt because then they get cross.
Infringements and fines are totally illegal any way. You can pay them by alternative payment or notices of conditional acceptance asking where they get the authority or jurisdiction to do it. Just ask the right questions and it sets up a private default judgement.

Q...Is not breaking any statute a criminal offence?

A...It might be if you are a citizen or person but if you are a man or woman how the heck can you commit a criminal offence if you break a statute. They commit offences every day of the week. Anyone in Govt or Police, if they know there are offences committed by fellow politicians and bureaucrats or their fellow officers and if they do nothing about it that's conspiracy and that's an offence. So they are continually committing offences and you can go after them for this. If you haven't got muscle don't go after them because the courts will throw them out because the courts are also committing offences every day of the week. They are all closing ranks to make sure that good doesn't come into port and evil is sustained in court. It's been taken over by the followers of the great deceiver, satanists.

Q… I stated three times in court "Am I a man?" Without the prosecution answering but the magistrate threatened me with a warrant for my arrest if I didn't agree I was a person.

A…"Sir with respect I surrender. Now that you've threatened me with my life, I'll comply, but I will report this to your superiors and by the way you just invoked the office of Commonwealth Public Official which means I now have to, I have a duty to report your offences to your superiors and let's see if you've got a job in the next couple of weeks with respect. But you could withdraw your offer you know and then I guess I would have no cause of action to file a formal complaint against you" I'll tel you what this works like magic. It's just knowing how to handle the flak that comes at you. The backlash for you standing up for yourself. Just very diplomatically very politely, but matter of factly, don't threaten them, don't yell at them, or you'll get cleaned up every time. You just come back with "I surrender I give up you've got me, but now that you've threatened me and it's on the public record…" They know they've threatened you with contempt.

Q…What is a best way to turn a court order to pay others court costs into a contract to avoid me paying. What are the grounds for me to do this is there a module for this?

A..yes there's one on contracts module four, you learn how to contract and redraft the terms of the contract and then provide consideration, for whatever amount you want. It's probably better to watch a full on workshop. I think online there are a couple of workshops recorded and you'll get a much better understanding.

Another case the Judge said "You have the right to do that" I said "Pardon? Thank you for your offer of benefits and privileges however I'll reserve my rights thank you very much" Some one cannot issue some one else with rights, rights are inherent, however they can offer benefits and privileges and how we answer that offer is crucial in keeping us out of contract with them. You have to read between the lines to ascertain what they are really saying to you.
